

Page Creator Tip #3: Privacy And Security Issues

Google Page Creatorâ??s Privacy Policy is basically the same as all other Google Privacy policies. Simply put, because you choose to use the service, you acknowledge that all of your content will be on Googleâ??s servers. This is great, because you donâ??t have to pay for hostingâ??Google handles it for you. Just understand that all of your content is subject to Googleâ??s policies. Content may be scanned for statistical and analytical use by Google, and content may eventually be scanned to provide relevant and targeted advertising. This is really no different from Gmailâ??s policies.

But donâ??t take my word for it. If you have concerns, review the policy yourself, and then make the decision to use or not use the service.

If you have issues or concerns with Googleâ??s policies, donâ??t forget that there are countless other options on the â??net to choose from!
